My 20-month old son, Hayes, does NOT do well with any kind of medicine. I haven't been able to get him to take an antibiotic until our Pharmacist suggested adding flavor to the medicine. It's a miracle worker! We added the grape flavor to his antibiotic and he's easily downed every dose! Can I get an AMEN?

My little cousin had to take clindamycin liquid and I could even agree- it smelt like dirty socks. I made a request at the pharmacy and they helped us figure out how to flavor it since applesauce was not helping. The pharmacy flavored the medicine and it made it more manageable for him to tolerate. So happy that the pharmacy had this in stock as a way to help him take the medicine!

Michael D.

Taking required medication for better health is important, and it is important to me to be able to offer FLAVORx to help make it easier to get children to take medications that may not taste great.

I feel that it's important to make medication an enjoyable experience for kids. With FLAVORx we are able to make medications more palatable for kids so they will want to take it. Kids need to trust medications and their pharmacist when they have to take something to make them better.

So many kids don't get the full benefits of their medication because they don't like how it taste and spit some out. A lot of parents don't know about FLAVORx until we tell them! I want the kids we treat to take their full doses of medication ( maybe even remind their parents to give it to them) so they can get better without multiple scripts

I had a toddler that was on a lot of liquid meds and mom always asked for the same flavor each time. The kid became apprehensive and combative to take any of his meds so I suggested expanding his flavor horizons and trying different flavors and to make sure he smelled the new flavor each time. Using the sense of smell is a powerful tool besides the flavor taste sense to make people less apprehensive and more compliant...except for some drugs like clindamycin.

Dane C.

Flavoring can be such a useful tool. I had a mom with a sick child last week that just looked miserable. Mom was worried that she was going to have trouble getting her son to take the medicine because he didn't like trying new things. I offered the boy (and mom) a flavor list and suggested that he pick out his favorite personal "recipe". The boy loved that he was a part of this process and was excited to try his medicine. Needless to say, Mom walked away very pleased and the boy left with a smile. :)

For those of you who don't know cleocin liquid has the worst taste ever. but every time I come across a customer I make sure I warn the patients this medicine is the worst so I always offer the flavoring options! Y'all are a life saver children will literally stop taking their meds if y'all didn't exist! Have had many happy kids leave the pharmacy!

Linda G.

Children are our future and making sure their medication is correct and tastes great is crucial to keeping them well. Because let's face it no one wants to take something that tastes bad. Many oral liquid medications taste awful and FLAVORx is a great tool in assuring medicine goes down easy.

We had a toddler that didn't like the taste of her compounded prescription of pantoprazole and she would spit it out, so we suggested flavoring it so it would taste better. Mom appreciated not having to fight with her daughter to take the medicine.

Monica H.

I guess not everybody has heard of flavoring those yucky meds.. I offer it to everybody that has a liquid med.. even the older folk. They've never heard of it.. but they sure thank me when they come back and asked to be flavored again..

Tina R.

We have a teenage autistic patient that, since she was a small child, will have a "melt-down" if her medication is not strawberry-flavored . Her mom has been struggling with this for a long time. When mom learned we flavored medications, she was elated and has had no medication-related episodes since.

Aimee S.

We had a patient that couldn't stomach the taste of a vitamin supplement. We were able to find a recipe for and order a masking agent specific for vitamin supplements. That mother was so happy, she hugged us.

Rachel B.

We had a little customer that had to take a lg amount of cleocin and he didn't want to take it. I mean we couldn't blame him the smell is horrible. We found out his favorite flavor and flavored it to that. His parents were grateful for the help.

Heather B.

I had a little old lady who was unable to take pills & loathed the taste of her meds. She kept getting sick because she wouldn't take them. She was ELATED the day she found out all her meds could be flavored! After that day we saw her less (but it's a good thing!)
